

Dear Nirim staff, students, families and partners,

It's the time of blossom
The spring is at its best colors and fragrances
A choir of nature whispers a melody.
This holiday, we shall accept, embrace, listen Gather
Laugh
Strive high
Hope
Love
And bloom.

Happy Festival of freedom,
The Nirim Family

Here we are again, celebrating the Holiday of liberty with you.
To me, the meaning of real freedom isn't only about being liberated from actual slavery.
It's about the ability to be released from habits and thoughts that delay our life journey fulfillment.

At the Nirim village, which is named after my son, Nir-of blessed memory, the youth have found their true freedom.

Nirim is where they are implemented with values, expand their horizons, become responsible, determined, aware of themselves and their environment, all in favor of the wonderful devoted staff that believes in them and never give up even when times are tough.

I would like to thank all who take part in these incredible achievements that give hope to many youth which provides meaning and comfort to our personal great loss.

Happy Holiday of liberty.

With love,
Hadas Krichman, Nir's Mom
